In 1788 he made the acquaintance of George Forster, one of Captain Cooks companions, and geological excursions made with him were the occasion of his first publications, a book on the nature of basalt. His work in the administration of mines in the principalities of Bayreuth and Anspach furnished materials for a treatise on fossil flora; and in 1827, when he was residing in Paris, he gave to the world his Voyage to the Equinoctial Regions of the New Continent, which embodies the results of his investigations in South America. Two years later he organised an expedition to Asiatic Russia, charging himself with all the scientific observations. But his principal interest lay in the accomplishment of that physical description of the universe for which all his previous studies had been a preparation, and which during the years 1845 to 1848 appeared under the comprehensive title of Cosmos, or Sketch of a Physical Description of the Universe. Humboldt died on May 6, 1859. For more eBooks visit www. kartindo. com This item ships from La Vergne,TN. Paperback.
